COAL RATIONING POSSIBLE; CARS MAY BE NEEDED.

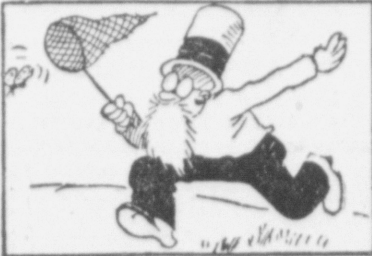

WASHINGTON, May 11—Possible emergency rationing of coal was in store for the public today unless consumers stockpile this fuel to storage at once and thus prevent serious transportation problems next Fall and Winter.

The warning was expressed after WPB Director Donald M. Nelson addressed an open letter to consumers telling them that retail coal dealers needing financial aid may obtain it from the RFC or through local banks if they purchase coal for shipment from the mines before August 1.

Nelson said the fuel oil situation on the east coast and Winter weather transportation problems make stockpiling operations now of great importance to "all consumers who are now dependent or may later on become dependent on coal for heating their homes, or running their plants and factories."

"Complete cooperation with the program will help the nation avert serious problems," he said.

Churchill Tells Populace To Carry Masks At All Times

BY LEO V. DOLAN
LONDON, May 11—Made suddenly poison gas conscious by a grim warning from Prime Minister Winston Churchill, the people of Britain today girded themselves for this new horror of war, convinced that Germany will come off second best if Adolf Hitler decides to make the test.

Britain is believed fully prepared to combat gas attacks and retaliate in full measure.

The British department of chemical warfare was believed mobilized fully one year before the war began, drawing to it the best brains of the chemical industry from throughout the empire.

After the collapse of France, the Germans altered their gas masks, convincing Britain that terms of the French surrender included disclosure of the British gas formula. Work was immediately begun on a new formula, which is at least equal and probably superior to anything that Germany can produce.

It is believed that Britain not only has discovered some of the most deadly gases yet devised, but has also found methods of using them in aerial warfare.

Could Use Planes
In field operations, low-flying aircraft could spray gas over forward troops, while long-distance bombers could drop gas bombs.

VOLCANO AIDS ALLIES; ASAMA ACTIVE AGAIN

LONDON, May 11—Burning ashes from the Japanese volcano Asama "were rained on an area for several miles from the crater," the Budapest radio reported today. The eruption was accompanied by a tremendous explosion, the Budapest report said.

The eruption was reported by the Berlin radio to have occurred Saturday night. Neither report gave any estimates of damage or casualties.

Residents of the vicinity deserted their homes and slept in the fields during the night while the volcano spat out flame and lava.

Asama is one of Japan's most active volcanoes. It is approximately 100 miles southwest of Tokyo and was a favorite calling place for tourists. During 1911 and 1912 some tourists were killed on its slopes during violent upheavals.

Its worst recorded eruption was in 1783 when thousands were killed during 88 days of continuous eruptions.

RETAILERS WILL ATTEND MEETING IN CHILLICOTHE

Many Circleville retailers will go to Chillicothe Monday evening to hear an explanation of the new over-all price ceiling which will be discussed by an Office of Price Administration officer from Cleveland.

E. L. Mason of the division of durable goods of the OPA office will address the gathering.

The retail committee of the Chamber of Commerce, headed by W. Joe Burns, urges a good attendance since information issued there will be of value to all merchants.

The meeting begins at 8 o'clock and continues until 10.

In addition to Circleville, other cities to have representations there will be Chillicothe, Jackson, Bainbridge, Kingston, Frankfort, Clarksburg and Adelphi.

The session will be held in the City Park Armory.

CHINESE GUERRILLAS HIT JAPANESE TROOP TRAIN

NEW YORK, May 11—Chinese guerrillas have blown up a Japanese troop train in Shansi province, while Chinese regulars have repulsed heavy enemy attacks near Hankow, the British radio reported today in a broadcast heard by CBS.

HERE'S a concise map of the second front created by the RAF bombing assaults on Germany and its satellite countries. It lists the key Nazi centers attacked, approximate flying time and mileage from secret British air bases. The actual time and mileage involved in the numerous and almost continuous raids varies due to the weight of the loads carried by the big planes, flying conditions, and the bombing strategy employed.

MANY ENGAGED IN PRODUCTION TO BE DRAFTED

DETROIT, May 11—Thousands of young men, now classified as essential war industry workers, soon will find themselves in the Army, Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national selective service director, said today.

Hershey, in Detroit for a statewide conference with Michigan draft board officials and for a local address, told motor city reporters:

"Production has to be kept up, but I believe it can be done without the aid of many of the younger men now deferred as 'essential'."

"Some of them, of course, are essential—that is, more valuable in their present jobs than in uniform. But I don't think that applies to a lot of young fellows who are termed essential merely by virtue of a brief period of training."

These latter, the national draft head indicated, "probably will have to be replaced by women."

However, everything depends on developments, Hershey said. "For instance, I have said that—in my opinion—there would be no general draft of men with dependents this year. That's the way it still looks, but suppose a decision is made to step up the rate of induction by 50 percent . . . ?"

180 STICKS OF DYNAMITE FOUND NEAR HUGE DAM

AZUSA, Cal., May 11—Authorities today investigated the possibility of intended sabotage following the discovery of 180 sticks of dynamite hidden near the San Gabriel dam. A federal forest guard found the cache.

Construction companies in the vicinity denied knowledge of the explosive. Deputy Sheriff B. D. Sells said it was near this spot that a woman reported prowlers May 1. He investigated at the time and questioned two couples in an automobile, but let them go.

YANK BOMBERS HIT JAPANESE SUBS IN NEW GUINEA REGION

By International News Service
News from the Coral sea area was meagre today following the smashing victory over the Japanese fleet last week. United Nations planes were scouring the vast areas of the sea off the Australian coast, alert for signs that the enemy was reforming his scattered forces and bringing up reinforcements for a renewal of the engagement.

Both General Douglas MacArthur's headquarters and the Japanese high command were withholding all details of any moves that might give valuable information to the opposing forces.

But military circles in Washington anticipated quick Nipponese counterblows in the southwest Pacific and did not rule out possibility of a raid on Alaska. Japanese naval units based on the Caroline islands were believed available to reinforce the Jap fleet routed in the Coral sea battle.

The scanty reports from the southwest Pacific were suggestive that a renewal of the naval action might be developing as American planes ranged over wide areas of the seas off north-east Australia.

A Japanese seaplane base was located in the Louisiade Archipelago, off New Guinea's south-east coast, and patrol bombers attacked and "sank or damaged" two Japanese submarines, the early communication reported.

More Jap Raids Loom
While Washington speculated on the next Japanese moves, Senator Sheridan Downey of California said America would soon have huge bombers, capable of flying from the Aleutians to Japan with tremendous bomb loads.

The new American bombers will be so heavily armed and armored that they will have little difficulty in protecting themselves from enemy pursuit planes, Senator Downey declared.

Reports from the fighting front gave evidence that pursuit was the order of the day from United Nations commanders. On two fronts the enemy was not only being driven back but was being cut to pieces in the chase.

The damaging of two Japanese submarines raised to 21 the total of enemy vessels sunk or badly battered in the Coral sea action.

On the Burma front the enemy was in headlong retreat from China as the Fifth and Sixth Chinese armies under American Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell slaughtered the Jap spearhead that advanced into Yunnan province of South China. The remnants were reported in danger of being cut off, and other Chinese forces were declared to be hammering again at the gates of Mandalay.

Moscow reported continued successes against Hitler's armies on the Russian front, with several thousand Nazis slain in a series of local victories.

CONGRESS MAY VOTE VITAL BILL TO FINANCE WAR

Rep. Gore's Measure Would Take 6 Percent Starting With $30 Week Pay

GEORGE IS FAVORABLE

Withholding Tax Possible On Salaries, Wages And Dividends

WASHINGTON, May 11—Proposals for a combination withholding tax and enforced savings program as a means of financing the war and checking the inflation spiral today appeared to be gaining favor in Congress.

Sen. George (D) Ga., chairman of the Senate finance committee, declared his flat support for a 5 to 10 percent withholding tax on salaries, wages, dividends and interest. If the higher figure is adopted he proposed that a part of the taxes derived should be held by the government and returned to the people in the immediate post-war period.

Rep. Gore (D) Tenn., who achieved considerable attention recently when he led a House fight for the so-called Baruch plan of an over-all "freezing" of the wartime economy, announced he will introduce a bill calling for enforced saving and "ceilings" on wages and salaries and farm commodities at parity.

Gore's measure would force savings of six percent of every salary of $30 a week, and graduate to a point where those with incomes of $36,000 a year would have to save $11,326 plus 100 percent of all over $36,000.

"Should Enact It"

George, who previously has indicated his favor of some "at-the-source" tax, told reporters, "I believe we should enact it now."

The Georgian expressed his disapproval of a treasury scheme to raise revenue by further lowering personal income tax exemptions and expressed the opinion that a general sales tax should be a "last resort" levy, to be applied only if sufficient revenues cannot be raised by other means.

He declared that lower exemptions would work undue hardships on the lower bracket "family" groups which would have to pay more than $500,000,000 of the $1,000,000,000 that would be raised by this method.

NAVY HERO PAYS PRIEST TRIBUTE FOR HIS HELP

NEW YORK, May 11—There is a hero in this war, virtually unknown and unsung, to whom even Lieut. John D. Bulkeley pays tribute.

He is Father Andrew A. Cervini, a Jesuit priest who "did a marvelous job" working with American and Filipino troops during the battle of the Philippines.

Lieut. Bulkeley, the torpedo boat hero who was feted at a Civilian Defense parade in Long Island city yesterday, revealed Father Cervini's efforts in the quiet of St. Teresa's Roman Catholic church in Woodside, L. I.

Not a Catholic himself, Lieut. Bulkeley had nevertheless visited the place of worship to offer a solemn prayer for the safety of the Long Island born priest, who was pastor of St. Michael's parish on the island of Mindanao.

"My men and myself," he explained later, "put in most of the time on the island of Mindanao. Father Cervini did a marvelous job with the men of my crew."

"He administered first aid to the injured. He supplied us with food and he made arrangements for the men who were exhausted to get out of the cramped quarters of our boat and have a more comfortable place to sleep."

"Father Cervini made his church into a hospital not only for my men, but soldiers and sailors, American and Filipinos alike."

"He was one of the finest men of God I ever met."

bombers might drop tens of thousands of small gas bombs, similar to incendiaries, or large gas containers attached to parachutes. Low-flying night bombers might distribute gas in liquid form.

Churchill left it up to the German chancellor to decide whether poisonous gases were to be used in the conflict. He promised that Britain would not initiate gas warfare but warned that the nation was fully prepared to unleash deadly fumes on the Reich if Hitler began to employ gas.

It was understood in London that the RAF had taken into consideration the possibility of gas warfare and had laid careful plans to engage in such combat. Bomber forces, it was said, could be equipped to send down lethal gas on Germany as promptly and as successfully as they have dropped mines into enemy waters. Every man and woman in the street who survived the hellish Nazi blitzes of 1940, as well as all service men from private to general, wholeheartedly supported Churchill's warning.

Press Acclaims Stand
There was no other topic of discussion today among people as they traveled to work aboard buses, subways and trains. The press was unanimous in its acclaim of the prime minister's stand.

It is impossible to over-emphasize Britain's determination to retaliate with grimest vengeance for any gas warfare which might be started by Germany. Likewise it's impossible to over-emphasize how quickly that vengeance would be taken.

RAF bombers could replace the high explosives now carried in their racks with gas bombs immediately, with the same facility with which they place sea mines aboard.

At the same time the British public has become more soberly aware of the possibility of gas attacks. More gas masks are being carried again and more attention being paid to street placards stating "Hitler Won't Give Any Warning—Carry Your Gas Mask."

The Daily Mail urged British families to practice affixing their gas masks immediately so they will be prepared to don them without faltering at a moment's notice.

The newspaper pointed out that no area is invulnerable either to bombing or gas and urged everyone to carry their masks at all times.

To Use Gas on Russia?
Hitler is preparing to use gas in his coming offensive against Russia and the Nazis are being issued a new type of respirator, the Daily Mail said in a dispatch from the German frontier.

ENGLAND'S "COLONEL BRITTON" HOPES TO DRIVE NAZIS NUTZIE WITH THESE CARTOONS

Not all the visiting cards left by the R. A. F. in occupied countries of Europe are explosive. Pictured above are samples of the "V for Victory" cartoons that are being used by the mysterious "Colonel Britton" to maintain morale among conquered peoples and make laughing stocks of Nazi leaders. They are dropped by British planes. Whether they fall in France, Norway, Poland or elsewhere, they need no translation; each cartoon tells its story without words.

ADMIRAL SILENT ON CONFERENCE AT MARTINIQUE

SAN JUAN, P. R., May 11—Rear Admiral John H. Hoover, commander of the U. S. Caribbean fleet, declined comment today on the results of his negotiations in Martinique with Admiral Georges Robert, French high commissioner, on an American proposal to safeguard Martinique from axis threats.

But it was learned on reliable authority that the discussions were "most favorable" and that Admiral Hoover probably would return to Martinique soon to continue the discussions.

VICHY, May 11—Pierre Laval and his advisers today awaited a full report from Admiral Georges Robert, Martinique high commissioner, on the details of terms proposed by the United States to guarantee against the island falling into axis control.

Meantime Laval was reported to have sent instructions to Ambassador Henri-Haye in Washington who apparently was by-passed by the American government in the negotiations.

An official communiqué said that U. S. Admiral John H. Hoover had presented "certain demands for modification of the present status" of the French possessions in the Caribbean.

The present status is the result of assurances exchanged by Vichy and Washington in recent months, the communiqué added. (The Berlin radio, commenting on the negotiations, declared there "could be no justification for American occupation of Martinique.")

WASHINGTON, May 11—The United States today is believed to be seeking the complete dismantling of the French warships and planes in Martinique and other French Caribbean possessions.

This is thought to be the main object of the understanding being sought with Admiral Georges Robert, French high commissioner of Martinique, by Admiral John H. Hoover, commander of the American naval forces in the Caribbean.

'KISS AND KILL' SLAYER GOES ON TRIAL FOR LIFE

CHICAGO, May 11—Clarence McDonald, the "kiss and kill" slayer of a 17-year-old girl in a movie balcony, was to go on trial today in criminal court where the prosecution planned to seek the maximum penalty for the death of Dorothy Broz.

Before a selection of a jury began in the court of Chief Justice Robert J. Dunne, Assistant State's Attorney Leslie Curtis and Francis McCurrie said they would qualify jurors for the death penalty.

Donald D. Rogers, attorney for the 17-year-old defendant, said he would plead insanity for McDonald and ask that he be sent to an institution.

Twelve hours after he shot and killed his sweetheart in the balcony of the Palace theatre February 24, McDonald was picked up

PRO-NAZI YOUTH HELD BY FBI FOR RIFLE SHOOTING

CLEVELAND, May 11—A fantastic one-man attempt by an admitted pro-Nazi to halt movements of war materials by shooting at train engineers was disclosed by authorities today as they held Donald Kintner, 20, who allegedly confessed that he wounded the engineer at the throttle of a train hauling war goods.

Lorain County Sheriff Carl H. Finnegan said the youth, son of an Elyria, O., read estate dealer, confessed he acted thus "because my sympathies were with Germany."

"I had thought of joining the German army, but gave it up and decided to stop movements of war materials instead," Kintner was quoted by the sheriff. The youth spoke coherently, the sheriff said.

F. J. Becker, 53-year-old engineer of the New York Central railroad, was wounded when shot from ambush with a rifle, but a fireman jumped to the controls and brought the freight train safely into Sandusky, O. Becker is recovering.

The sheriff quoted the youth as saying he first attempted unsuccessfully to shoot a train signal system by wrecking at a battery station, and then decided to shoot train engineers.

The youth was held for possible federal action after sheriff's deputies and FBI men arrested him in weeds near the railroad track where, he said, he was waiting to fire at the engineer of another train.

Kintner lives near the scene of the shooting, three miles west of Elyria.

TWO ARMY PAY BILLS UP FOR SOLONS' STUDY

WASHINGTON, May 11—Congress today faced a problem in military and common household economics—that of boosting the fighting forces' payroll and of providing for service men's dependents.

Meaningful in the light of broadening the nation's war effort, the two measures coming are:

1. The pay increase bill, to raise the amounts paid enlisted men, second lieutenants and ensigns, scheduled for a vote in the House Tuesday. The measure, introduced by Rep. May (D) Ky., has passed the Senate and been necessary, I will not be averse to it," George said. "But I believe that a withholding tax—that is a tax at the source—perhaps with a part to be returned to the taxpayer after the war, would be the better method.

"We can get considerable revenue by lowering exemptions, but this would place a very heavy burden on those in the lower brackets."

George estimated that a five percent withholding tax would raise $2,500,000,000 a year.

Might Be 10 Percent

"We might go to a 10 percent tax if prices rise too much and it is necessary to reduce the flow of money," George said. "If a 10 percent tax were enacted I should think that at least five percent should be returned after the war."

Sen. Tydings (D) Md., declared in a radio speech that lower tax exemptions were considered necessary by the treasury in order to obtain the necessary revenues to prosecute the war. He estimated that three-quarters of the families in the United States have incomes of $2,500 or less a year.

"Obviously, this is the only place where more money can be obtained with which to pay the costs of the war," he declared.

TIRE BREAKS; CAR WRECKED

When a tire blew out, Ernest Mitchell, Circleville route 2, lost control of his car and it crashed into a telephone pole on Route 22 near the junction with Route 104, highway patrolmen reported Saturday night. ASHVILLE

Fire of undetermined origin started Saturday afternoon at about 2 o'clock in the basement of the George Messick building on Long street and occupied by the Gable drug store. A shrill blast of the fire alarm siren at the telephone office, next door neighbor, soon brought a crowd of on-lookers to learn what the big smoke rolling from the basement windows was all about. The local fire laddies, some dozen or more of them, were soon on the job and with hose hurriedly connected to a nearby hydrant, had water streaming on the blaze in short order. In an hour or less at a guess fire all out, hose drained and reeled up ready for next call which fortunately these have been few and far between.

Blaze was confined to the basement not breaking through to the store room containing the merchandise.

Damage to building, which is comparatively small, is covered by insurance.

Now for the result of the four-day sugar card distribution kindly administered by the local school teachers directed by Superintendent C. A. Higley. Total applications were 1,606 with 1,399 of these given ration books and 207 placed on the waiting list because of too much sugar now in stock. This ration book board will be in session again soon, it is said and the exact time will be given here soon as known.

Mrs. William A. Bowers received a telegram of Mother's day greeting from her son, Pfc. William Bowers, stationed at Angel Island, California.

Library Notes

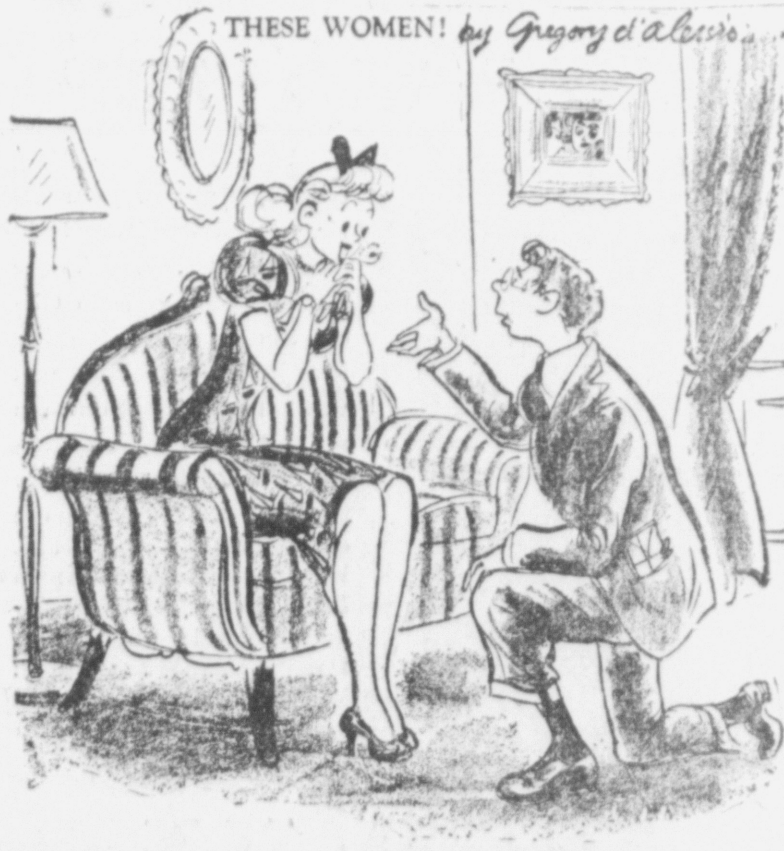

Living Under Tension—By H. E. Fosdick. A book of sermons on Christianity today. This is the first volume of sermons published by Dr. Fosdick in four years. Each sermon is doubly important and timely now, when mankind seems bent on its own destruction. In the midst of world events the various sermons are both applicable and true.

Murder for Pleasure—by Howard Hayscraft.

The subtitle says this is "the life and times of the detective story", a history of this type of fiction that started with Edgar Allan Poe and is flourishing today. The book includes chapters on the technique of the detective story, the market for them, a list of fictional detectives, a detective story quiz, selected list of detective stories and a bibliography. This one should be of interest to all detective story fans.

STARS SAY—

For Monday, May 11

Monday's astrological forecast is for a lively and progressive day, with much moving to major operations under high pressure. However, this tempo may prove menacing, since there may be danger of agitation, strife, and rash and impulsive action, with rancor and ill feeling. Secret enmity and deceit also pervade the domestic, affectional or social relations, although public or community interests push on to gratifying culminations. It is wise to deal with groups and agencies rather than hazardous personal contact. Safeguard love affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may have a lively year, with much success and satisfaction if turbulent, violent and impetuous conduct be avoided by dealing through public channels or agencies where there might be strife or contention in private contacts. Intimate affiliations are under baneful vibrations.

A child born on this day should be clever and versatile but its nature may be impetuous, turbulent and difficult especially in its private relations.

SCIOTO SCHOOL WILL GRADUATE 21 ON MAY 20

Twenty-one seniors of Scioto township high school, the same number as last year, will receive from R. D. Shauck, superintendent, their diplomas at the graduation exercises Wednesday evening, May 20, in the school auditorium.

The valedictory address will be given by Gladys Bowshier, and the salutatory address by Harry Bowshier.

O. E. Hill, assistant director of education, will be the main speaker of the evening.

Activities for the seniors consisting of thirteen boys and eight girls begin Sunday evening, May 17, in the auditorium with Rev. Culver, pastor of the Methodist church, delivering the baccalaureate sermon. The seniors will wear caps and gowns for both services.

The high school band and glee club under the direction of Miss Keighley will furnish the music. The alumni banquet will be held May 23 in the auditorium.

The following pupils are members of the graduating class: John Beatty, Elwin Beavers, Dolores Beavers, Gladys Bowshier, Harry Bowshier, Warren Dennis, Mack Drake, Glenn Haughn, Helen Hinton, Dale Martin, Isabel McGhee, Ueal Melvin, Leora Nano, Max Neal, William Painter, Geneva Shoaf, Leota Sprouse, Bertha Sutton, Ovid Timmons, Lyle Walters and Richard Willoughby.

The Newspaper club members convened last week to elect part of the "Sciotoonian" staff for the next school term. Vivian Wilson will succeed Harry Bowshier as editor, and Lenora Shoaf will succeed Gladys Bowshier as assistant editor. Other members of the staff will be as follows: art editor, Esther Lawless; joke editor, Bernice Willoughby; and mimeograph, Helen Kauffeld and Pauline Neal. Mr. Shauck will act as the staff adviser.

The Conservation club under the supervision of Mr. MacBride held a winner roast at Roadside park near Harrisburg Monday evening, May 11.

The following girls participated in the track meet which was held at New Holland, May 8: Lovetta Fannin, Bertha Painter, Esther Lawless, Betty Graham, Dolores Beavers, Pauline Neal, Gladys Bowshier, Arlene Willoughby, Bernice Willoughby, Helen Kauffeld, Betty Walker, Bonnie Davis and Norine Stroble.

Thursday, May 7, our girls' volleyball team and our boys' softball team traveled to Darby for a scheduled game. Our girls won by a score of 11-4; our girls won one volleyball game and lost two. We have one more scheduled game which will be with Monroe Friday, May 15.

The annual eighth grade commencement will be held in the school auditorium Wednesday, May 13, at 8 o'clock. At this time the eighth grade pupils will receive their high school diplomas.

The seniors on the annual staff have been working hard and patiently for the last three weeks in order to get the annuals published as soon as possible.

BOY ENLISTS IN ARMY

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — After eight days in the Army, Peter Perri, 14, is back in his eighth grade school room. Peter convinced recruiting officers that he was 19 and spent eight days in Fort Meade before his father discovered his whereabouts and secured his discharge because of age. The boy assured the top sergeant that he would be back when he was 18, and said he planned to spend his week's pay for a birthday present for his father.

NEXT NEW CARS

THERE are many regretful sighs as the War Production Board scraps the $60,000,000 worth of automobile dies that were intended for this year's car models. The plans are worthless now and the metal of which the dies are made will go to war uses. There will be no new cars while the war lasts. That will be years—how many, no one knows.

What we do know, or can guess, is that when the automobile industry starts up again there will be a new heaven and a new earth as far as transportation is concerned. Flying will be immensely advanced. Land travel will blossom forth with car models such as have never been seen, and of which few have dreamed.

New metals may make those future cars much lighter and faster and more easily handled. Also plastics will play a large part in them. Bodies may be transparent or luminous. There may be combination land-and-air cars.

But whatever else the automotive designers do to them, millions of practical-minded people will hope for relief from the greatest defects of our present cars—their frailty. Why should fenders and bodies crumple at the mere touch of an obstacle or another car? First of all, there should be tough, durable bodies, capable of standing bumps and shocks.

THE PEACE JOB

"TOTAL war" should lead to total peace, and that implies ample power to maintain the peace. It begins to look as if the world may come to it this time. Leaders in many lands, including our own, talk more and more frankly about the need of complete control of the world, in a civilized way for civilized purposes, when the present fires have burned themselves out.

In any such global system the United States, no doubt, will play a big part—perhaps the leading part. That is suggested by our economic and military power and also by the apparent expectation of the world in general that we should lead. Our people, too, seem to be rising rather surprisingly to the same point of view, not egotistically, but with an apparent feeling that "it's our job" and it has to be done. This is one of the most surprising things in the present world situation.

We'd be for isolation if we knew where to find any.

People are using too much electricity—turn off the juice.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By— Charles P. Stewart

SENATOR ROBERT A. TAFT, in asserting that "hardly an agency (meaning Uncle Sam's wartime emergency agencies) is being set up which doesn't hope to continue its activities into the post-war period," may have misexpressed himself slightly. Such agencies, newly created or in process of creation, are doing their job right now, according to the Ohio solon.

I have my doubts that they're as far-seeing as that. They're being established, supposedly, on a temporary basis. That's what their personnel are told when they're given their various assignments. I think they begin work genuinely on that theory. If the occasion for 'em should evaporate quite speedily, I surmise that they'd disintegrate rather unresistingly.

Give them tenures of two or three years apiece, though, until they've had time to regard themselves as regular, permanent government bureaucrats, then tell 'em that the proper juncture has arrived for 'em to be abolished—and watch 'em fight for their lives (tooth and toenail).

Furthermore, they'll be sufficiently dug in to hang on eventually. Here and there an agency's name and alphabetics classification may be changed a bit, but it'll be the same old agency—or same young agency.

If Senator Taft had put it that an agency of today will last on into eternity, no matter how temporary its origin may have been, he'd have had plenty of precedents to cite in support of his contention.

Young folk of post-World War No. 1's generation, glancing around Washington and seeing themselves surrounded to the verge of suffocation with federal commissions and things, of every sort and description, fancy that it's a condition dating back to our first president's era.

It does no such thing. It dates back in instalments to a succession of past durations.

Washington's agencies classify, in the Congressional Directory, as "independent offices." I don't know how many the presidential Father of his Country was blessed with, because I can't find a Directory as old as that. The issue of 1908 is the earliest copy I'm able to lay my hands on.

In that there are 15 of 'em.

Initially they were temporaries, unquestionably created by exigencies of the 1812, Mexican, Secession and Spanish-American wars, and some of them, perhaps, by the 1872 economic emergency. Anyways, they never were abolished. They're better entrenched now than some of our younger cabinet departments.

Well, there was a perfect epidemic of executive office creations during the 1914-18 war period. As at present, they were for the duration, but they're still doing business, I don't say they're superfluous, but lookit how temporary they were not!

Next there was a violent outbreak of creations to deal with the depression spell early in the 30's—all temporarily, now as permanent as the Washington monument. President Roosevelt himself can't terminate 'em. He even has trouble persuading congress to reduce their miscellaneous allowances.

117 Listed
Taking a glance at the last Congressional Directory, I counted 117 of these set-ups, as compared with 15 in the 1908 volume.

And 117 is no complete list, believe me.

They're being established too fast for the Directory to keep up with.

Temporary? Heck! They're just starting to go from now, on into American history.

Senator Taft's dope isn't alone, though, that we're loading up enormously.

His thesis is that we're at the helm a New Deal administration, which, under cover of the war emergency, is snatching a New Deal regime into power, to function indefinitely on, economically, after the war's past number.

The Ohio senator, like some Democratic conservatives (far be it from me to deprecate conservatism), is worried as to the post-war future.

They're on a hot spot. They're 100 per cent pro-administration on the war issue, and yet they figure that it's an issue that's being manipulated against their ultimate politico-economic ideas.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

THREE NEW BILLS

WASHINGTON—Black-out by Corridor-Burma headlines, three bills have been introduced in Congress recently which in normal times would have brought an army of lobbyists gnashing their teeth to Washington.

These bills are calculated to make vital, basic changes in our economic system and head off the type of thing which helped bring war to Europe. They provide for:

1. Reforming the patent system so that companies like Standard Oil, General Electric and Alcoa would not be able to cooperate with Germany in hindering production of synthetic rubber, carbide, and magnesium.

2. Developing U. S. raw materials, such as aluminum clay, so this country will not be caught short again; also so that little companies will get a break in developing them.

3. Registering corporations under the federal government. This would mean that corporations no longer could register under the laws of the state of Delaware which has the most lax corporation regulations in the Union. By requiring federal incorporation, the government could prevent child labor, set up various standards without going to each state for constitutional amendments.

Authors of these three bills are a trio of western senators who have waged unceasing war against monopoly: Joe O'Mahoney of Wyoming, Bob LaFollette of Wisconsin; and Homer Bone of Washington. Working with them behind the scenes is trust-busting Thurman Arnold.

WAR-BORN MONOPOLIES

For months these three senators watched and helped Arnold expose the iron-clad cartels by which American big business joined with Nazi big business to throttle inventions, hold patents out of circulation, prevent the development of supplies absolutely vital to the U. S. Army and Navy.

This senatorial trio also has seen how Nazi cartels (monopolies), reaching out for more and more power, helped precipitate war in Europe. So they have determined that now is the time to head off the growth of U. S. monopolies after the war. Finally they fear that the once liberal New Deal, now throwing more and more war orders to big business in an effort to beat Hitler, runs the grave risk of concentrating economic power in the hands of a few.

That's why they are setting up the legislative framework of economic reform now, before the war is over.

Note: — Wyoming's Joe O'Mahoney once was described by a big business executive as "the senator who can stroke a witness at 20 feet then when he is purring happily, 'pull the lanyard and blast his economic theories to pieces.'" O'Mahoney for years has been crusading against monopoly, and the Monopoly committee which he headed paved the way for much of Thurman Arnold's trust-busting.

DIET AND HEALTH

Science Now Studying Diets for Old People

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

SOME PHILOSOPHER has said that man should go out of life dietetically as he came into it—on milk. This seems to be, fundamentally at least, in conformity with modern scientific nutritional advice.

We are paying more and more attention to the diseases of old people, which is quite natural considering the increase in our aged population. A number of scientific treatises have appeared of late in the field of geriatrics, which is the specialty of the treatment of the elderly, and among these studies have been scientific investigations of the dietetic adjustments which must be made for the aged.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

In the first place the total amount of food required is reduced rapidly after the age of 60. From 60 to 75 years the total caloric requirement is estimated as 10 per cent less than in youth and middle age. For those over 75 it would be 20 per cent less.

There are certain elements in food which old people probably need more of than would be indicated by their weight and by the total food intake. Protein, that is to say meat, eggs and milk, should be kept at least as high as that of a young person.

Digestion Poor
The digestion of elderly people is poor and their absorption of minerals and vitamins is often not as good as normal. They are inclined to show deficiencies of calcium, phosphorus, iron and iodine.

Calcium can be found in milk, which brings us back to our original statement that the diet of old age should be the diet of infancy. Cheese is also a good food for elderly people because it is easy to digest and rich in calcium.

Milk is a poor source of iron, and in the aged, iron should be furnished and, in fact, pushed in the form of green vegetables and fruit. Sea foods contain iodine.

The diet may contain plenty of vitamins, but it is notorious that vitamin deficiencies can come from lack of absorption and in the diet of the aged there should be special care on the part of the dietitian to see that the vitamin content is high.

It is well to space the meals of those over 60 with at least four and one-half hours between meals and three meals a day. The meals should be approximately equal in calories without any one large meal that would overtax the digestive system.

The following menu is suggested for a sedentary patient 75 years old:

Breakfast: Orange juice, 1/2 cup; Rolled oats, cooked, 1/2 cup; whole milk, 1 cup; egg, 1 medium-sized; bacon, crisp, 2 1/2 slices; toast, 1 slice; butter, square; marmalade, 2 teaspoonfuls; cream, 1 tablespoonful; sugar, 2 teaspoonfuls; coffee, 1 cup.

Lunch: Bread, 1 slice; butter, 1 square; tomato, 1/2 cup; peas, young, canned, 1/2 cup; potato, size of 2 eggs; meat, medium fat, 1 slice; baked apple, 1 small; cream, 4 tablespoonfuls; sugar, 2 teaspoonfuls; coffee or tea, 1 cup.

Dinner: Bread, 1 slice; butter, 1 square; string beans, 1/2 cup; beets, 1/2 cup; sliced bananas, 1/2 medium-sized; cream, 1 tablespoonful; meat, medium fat, 1 slice; milk, 5/8 cup; sugar, 1 scant teaspoonful; chocolate cornstarch pudding.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Mrs. E.—My baby is nine months old. I have changed from the canned milk formula to pasteurized milk. I always thought it necessary to boil pasteurized milk three minutes but have been told by a nurse that this is not necessary. Which is correct, please? How long is it necessary to boil nursing bottles and nipples? I also thought the steam which forms on top during boiling is the cream. Is this correct?

Answer: Pasteurized milk is supposed to be sterile for all practical purposes and it is therefore unnecessary to boil it. Nipples and bottles should be boiled for three minutes after the water comes to a boil. The steam that forms on the surface of boiled milk is protein and not cream. It can be skimmed off without doing any special harm.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER NINETEEN

IF THERE had been any doubt in Tibby's mind as to whether or not Marg was in love after the crack-up that made her a heroine, it was wiped away in the days that followed. Marg went around in a sort of rosy fog, her eyes dreamy, her thoughts far away. She still wore that new look that Tibby knew came from some inward happiness too wonderful to reveal, the look of a woman in love and loved in return.

Tibby was glad that Marg was so happy, but if its cause came from what she suspected, it was a futile happiness that could not last. Tibby wanted to say something to her friend, but since Marg had not confided in her, that was an exceedingly difficult thing to do. Besides, why not let Marg have her happiness a little while? Surely that could do no harm to anyone.

Tibby had problems of her own, too.

She had been able to put aside, for the time being, the unexpected and startling remark that Wayne Courtwright had made when he phoned the night of the accident, but it had remained in the back of her mind, troubling her more than she would have cared to admit. He had said that she was on HIS mind all of the time lately, adding that although it was not the time to say it, he meant it.

Tibby did not suppose he was a man who said such things unless he did. But he couldn't—she could not let him. There was Steena, who considered Wayne her special property, as she had given Tibby to understand without reservations. And Tibby, herself, had resolved that the flying lessons must not lead to anything personal. She did not, of course, know that Wayne had made this same resolution, only to find now that he wanted to break it.

She thought of postponing her next lesson, but that would only be just that—postponement. She was getting along so nicely now—in a while Wayne had promised that she should solo, that she could not give up the lessons. He would think rightly that it was most ungrateful of her if she did.

No, there was nothing to do but face it, which sounded as if she were magnifying things again. What if Courtwright had made such an unexpected remark. It might not contain as much meaning as she was putting into it. What if he had had her on his mind a lot lately? Maybe he just meant as a pupil, because of their mutual interest in flying.

But Tibby knew she was only kidding herself, and not doing too good at that. She knew it as soon as she saw her instructor again when she went to take the lesson that she had decided might as well not be postponed.

He was waiting for her and said,

"I was afraid you might not come today." As he had that first time, only with a difference.

She said, much as she had that first time, too, "I wouldn't miss my lesson for anything." Lightly, gayly, yet making it the lesson that was most important. "Why should you think I wouldn't come?" Perhaps it would have been better if she had not asked that. That was always Tibby's way, face facts, get them out in the open and over with.

"You hung up on me the other night." His gray eyes reproved her, but his handsome mouth wore its amused expression, for indeed, it was a new, and therefore an amusing, experience to have had a girl hang up on him.

"I didn't mean to!" He was amused, too, by the flood of color sweeping over her pretty face. Did she know how becoming it was—and intriguing—a girl who actually could blush without benefit of drug store preparations?

"I presume that you could not talk, so you are forgiven. Was that young doctor of yours still there?" Wayne intended to get this young man placed, much as Tommy had endeavored to do the same with him, without any preambles. He had decided that the reason Tibby had refused so bluntly that evening to take a ride with him was because she had thought the doctor might put in an appearance. Wayne knew, from her surprise and relief when he had that she had not been sure. He had gathered that they were friends of long standing from the same small mid-west town. Was there anything more between them? He meant to get this settled definitely, too, in short order.

Tibby said, her color still high, "Yes, Tommy was still there." Should she tell him that Steena had been there also? Before she could, had she decided to do so, he asked her another direct question.

"Are you engaged to this young man, my dear?" In spite of its directness, it was put in such a way that one could not take offense. Wayne was expert at putting things thus when he chose, and at the same time so that just as direct an answer was imperative.

"No," Tibby said, "I'm not." She might have added that she could have been, but then she would have had to have added, as well, that she couldn't, since Tommy had first proposed, then withdrawn the proposal. The memory of that still smarted.

"That's good," Wayne Courtwright made no attempt to hide his relief. "I don't mean that he did not seem a most estimable young man—if a trifle young—but I am glad that you are not going to marry him. Tell me one thing more while we are on the subject." His eyes smiled into hers. "Are you engaged to be married to anyone?"

Surprised and startled again, although by now she should have been getting used to his high-handed way of dealing with everything, Tibby said why, no, she wasn't.

"I'm glad to have that settled, too. Then there really is no reason why we cannot be friends, as you agreed, only to refuse to act accordingly."

"But I didn't mean to . . . to act unfriendly!"

"You refused to have something to eat or drink with me after the last lesson. You practically shut the door in my face when I came to bring you some books. You refused flatly to go for a ride, although you would not give any reason. You sat on the edge of your chair as though eager for me to go . . . Oh, you were polite enough to satisfy Miss Emily Post, maybe." His accusations took on a bantering tone. "But that does not satisfy me. When I asked you to be friends I meant it, just as I meant all the other things I said, my dear. I cannot get you off my mind, although I realize it is too soon to say it. There are lots of things I may say later, now that I know there's no reason why I shouldn't but, meantime, well, can you give me any reason why you won't be friends?"

Tibby had the answer to that, but how could she give it? She could not say, "I cannot be friends with you because I know Steena would not like it." After all, if Tibby was not engaged to anyone, neither was Wayne engaged to Steena. If he felt he could be friendly with more than one girl it was hardly up to Tibby to tell him he couldn't.

"There's no reason why we can't be FRIENDS," she admitted, but she said it in such a way that he would know that they could not be anything more. She knew it was a dangerous admission, for hadn't he told her as plainly that the time might come when he would want more than friendship? He had said it was too soon for more than that. She knew that he did not know yet himself how much more than friendship he might find he wanted of her. And Tibby found now that she wanted to be friends with him. Yes, whether Steena liked it or not. He had been so very kind to her, although that was not the only reason. She admired his immense-ness; she liked him as a person. Being human, she was not unaware of the compliment he paid in seeking her friendship. Being feminine, she could not help being pleased, even flattered.

He said, very much as Tommy had to Steena, "It is, then, an agreement. We are friends—for the present. We shall behave as friends toward each other. Shall we also shake on it?"

He held out his hand. Tibby gave him hers. They shook solemnly, as two people sealing a dual pledge, (To Be Continued)

About This And That In Many Sports

Just Notes:

Newark won the central Ohio league track meet at Chillicothe with 85 points against 80 1/2 for Marietta, despite the fact that the Pioneers chalked up seven first against five. . . Chillicothe was third and Lancaster fourth. . . A Chillicothe field half mile mark set by Harold Smith of Circleville in 1938 was broken by Kitchen of Newark, who went the distance in two minutes seven and one-tenth seconds, cutting five-tenths of a second off Smith's mark. . . Snow Seymour, Tom Shea and numerous other Circleville high harriers were in the crowd. . . Clarksburg, coached by John Kirkwood, formerly of Circleville, won the Ross county B title. . . Circleville high golfers were disappointed Saturday when the London high team failed to put in an appearance for a scheduled match. . . The Red and Black participates in the Central Ohio district meet next Saturday at Indian Springs course. . .

That double shutout chalked up Sunday by the Cincinnati Reds has stirred up interest in the team in Circleville. . . Few local fans cared much whether the Reds won or lost, until they blanked the St. Louis gang in both ends of a bill. Starr and Walters doing the chucking. . . Ex-Red Bird Max Marshall has done quite well in his brief time as a Redleg. . .

From all indications there will be no softball league this Summer in Circleville, unless someone does something about it. . . From this corner it would appear that a church league and an industrial league could be formed to play a couple of times a week. . . Evenings will be long this Summer without some kind of softball to watch. . .

TWO MEN THREATEN TO HIT 300 MARK IN ABC

COLUMBUS, May 11—There for a couple of spells last night the crowd thought that maybe—just maybe, you know—somebody was going to get that 300 game in the ABC tournament here. . . But nobody did. . . The men who tried hardest of all were William Fye of Columbus, Ind. and Vernald Bovard of Jess-up, Pa. . .

The crowd — hungry for any kind of excitement in these closing days of the tournament — didn't notice Bovard very much on the last squad, but Fye was the favorite on the first shift. . . Each man was bowling in the team event and there's never been a perfect game in the five-man event. Closest to that this year was Henry Wollenberg of Davenport, Iowa, who tallied 297 about six weeks ago. . .

Fye was the first man to try it Sunday night. He had nine in a row before he ran into the 6-10 in the last frame. He picked the 6 off 10 and wound up with 266. . . Then Bovard came along with nine straight and he missed the head-pin on his tenth frame ball, leaving the 1-2-5 and cut the 1-2 away from the 5, hitting 265 for his game. . .

A 299 game during the current tournament was tossed by Joe Heinrich of Chicago in the singles and that stands as the tournament's best single game effort. . . Sunday's scoring was down again—best singles was 659 by James Cowitz, Cicero, Ill., best doubles was 1202 by Lester Carr and Clyde Pratt of Galesburg, Ill., and the top team was Fred & Jo's of Detroit with 2759. . .

Alsab Again On Racing Tongues After Victory
By JACK MAHON
NEW YORK, May 11—He lost eight races in a row and still they talked about him. Then last Saturday, the Cinderella horse called Alsab routed the witches that rode round his barn by moonlight by winning the $58,175, fifty-second running of the famed Preakness stakes at Pimlico — and now you can't shut them up! . . .

How good is Alsab? Were those stories of his gruelling, merciless campaign exaggerated? . . . These were just a few of the many angles discussed by racing fans of the East over the week end as the gallant son of Good Goods—Winds Chant enjoyed a brief rest and looked to return engagements with the three year olds he kissed good bye in the stretch, high on the hill in Baltimore, as the sun started fading Saturday. . .

Al Sabath, who picked up the colt for only $700 at the Saratoga yearling sales a couple of years ago, said he would ship him to Belmont where he would begin training for the $25,000 added mile and a half Belmont stakes. He may also take a crack at the Withers mile. . .

What does the future hold in store for the dead-gone juvenile champion of 1941, who certainly ran like the three year old champion Saturday? Frankly, we can't guess. . .

Anyone who saw Alsab, dreary looking, weary, ribs sticking out, going to the post in the Kentucky Derby, and said the horse would stand up under a heavy Summer campaign, would be laughed off the track. . .

Yet because of his great stretch run in that race and the faith the mob had in that million dollar heart of his, Alsab was made a $2.05 to $1 favorite over Shut Out, his derby conqueror, in the Preakness, and came from ninth place on the backstretch to win it going away. . .

We met Al Sabath, the colt's owner, when we reached Pimlico shortly after noon Saturday and asked him about the horse. "He's a greatly improved horse. You won't recognize him this week," he said. . .

And we didn't, when Basil

TUESDAY IS CIRCLEVILLE DAY AT BEULAH COURSE

Continuing a practice established last Fall, Robert Dienst, president of Columbus' Beulah Park race course, has announced a second series of "Neighboring City" days for his suburban plant. Second such day in the current series will be observed Tuesday afternoon when residents of Circleville and vicinity will be guests of the Beulah management. . .

Though no special events are planned for Circleville sportsmen a full card of eight races, ranging from five furlongs to grueling mile and one-quarter marathons, will be presented. Circleville fans will have a block of seats reserved for them in the grandstand. . .

Virginia ranks 33rd among the states in area. It has 2,365 square miles of water area; 40,262 square miles land area — total 42,627 square miles. . .

State To Spend $131,400 For Resurfacing Of Scioto Trail

BIDS WILL BE OPENED JUNE 2 FOR ROAD WORK

Route 23 From Circleville To Franklin Line Will Be Activity Scene

13.987 MILES LISTED

Asphaltic Concrete Will Be Used To Repair Vital Military Highway

State highway department this week will start advertising for bids for the largest roadway resurfacing project conducted in Pickaway in many years. Bids will be opened June 2 in the office of the state highway director for the project which will cover Route 23 from the northern limit of the Circleville corporation to the Franklin county line.

Total length of the resurfacing job, which will be with asphaltic concrete, will be 13.987 miles, and the estimated cost is $131,400.

The work must be completed by October 1.

Advertising distributed by the highway department lists the work for Route 23 for Circleville, Walnut and Harrison townships and the village of South Bloomfield.

Engineers of the department have been surveying the highway north of Circleville for the last several months, leading many to believe that a new road would be constructed to replace the narrow and badly worn thoroughfare, which is one of Ohio's most important routes since it has been declared a military highway. However, Hal Sours, state director of highways, announced early in the week that because of the war and the uncertainty of available funds the road would only be resurfaced.

NEW SORT OF DRAFT
HARRISBURG, — Pennsylvanians face a new sort of draft—conscription of civilians to battle the raging floods that sweep the state in the spring of the year.

The flood emergency committee can depend upon approximately 400 game, fish and forest wardens but will be forced to draft workers since the state's famed 28th Division became part of the nation's armed forces, and the Pennsylvania Reserve Defense Corps of 3,800 men would be engaged in maintaining order during floods.
